Good interior and exterior condition overall. The car has been garage kept and run only a few miles per year. It runs and drives well but will need work on the power brakes and new tires to be driven safely on a regular basis. The AC was working as recently as a year ago but is no longer blowing cold. As you can see from the pics, this car is still in very good condition for the age and won't require a lot of restoration for someone that has the time to do it and a passion for big Mopars like this one.

I added a few more pics based on request for additional views and am happy to add any others. Basically, the care is already in respectable condition for enjoying at car shows and cruise-ins but if your looking for something that's going to win awards you'll need to do some reconditioning. I did try to highlight the areas that will need the most work on the car. I was repainted once before my father purchased it. He bought it in 1996 but I don't know when it was painted. As good as the paint still is, it was obviously done very well. The front bumper has a scuff and the back bumper has a slight twist to it on the drivers side - look like the prior owner must have backed into something.
